Dear Author:

Your manuscript entitled "Two Dark Stories from Rural Rural Indonesia: Comparing the Poverty in Turah (2016) and Siti (2014)" was read by our referees. They have returned their comments included at the bottom of this letter.

We request that you revise your paper based on the referees' comments and suggestions. Please note that re-refereeing of the revision is required, based on the recommendations of the referees. As you will see, the review process has identified the need for some significant changes, and the editorial committee is including some suggestions on how to go about this. We hope that this is useful to you.

For the deadline for submitting your revised version please check it on your site at ScholarOne Manuscripts.

To submit your revised manuscript, follow the below steps.

1. Access to <https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/seas> and log into the site.
 2. Click "Author" at the top left of the screen at "Home" page.
 3. Click "Manuscripts with Decisions" on Author Dashboard page.
 4. Click "create a revision" on the manuscript you are going to revise.
 5. The system creates your revision manuscript form. Provide your comments about the revised points at the response field, fill in on each field step by step as same as you did for the original submission, and submit your revised manuscript. IMPORTANT: Your original files are available to you when you upload your revised manuscript. Please delete any redundant files before completing the submission.
- Your manuscript number has been appended to denote a revision.

You will be unable to make your revisions on the originally submitted version of the manuscript. Please prepare a new file that highlights the changes to your manuscript using the Track Changes. Once the revised manuscript is prepared, you can upload it and submit it through your Author Center.

When submitting your revised manuscript, you will be able to respond to the comments made by the reviewers in the space provided. You can use this space to document any changes you make to the original manuscript. In order to expedite the processing of the revised manuscript, please be as specific as possible in your response to the reviewers.

Please let us know in advance when you expect to send the revised version of your manuscript. Thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely,
The Editorial Committee, Southeast Asian Studies

[Editor's Comments]
Associate Editor
Comments to the Author:

The reviewers have found your submission interesting, but agree that it would take quite a bit of work to bring the paper up to shape for publication in the Journal. We would thus require MAJOR REVISIONS if you would like to work on this more and re-submit for review once again in consideration of these comments:

The paper is largely descriptive, and needs to develop more a more sustained line of critical analysis.

In its present form, there are a number of inconsistencies and other areas in need of revision. In the first introductory paragraph, for example, this paper discusses rapid transformations of the post-New Order period, but without significant analytical depth in treating dynamics of political and economic power. Then the discussion rapidly shifts to a very different topic (local and national film production), but again rather superficially and with the citation of a number of references that do not seem particularly relevant.

In this way, we do not really get a sustained focus on 'poverty', which the writer had signalled would be the main focus of paper.

Here there also appear to be problems with the choice of films discussed in the paper, and the arguments that the author makes at several points, such as for example the under-developed argument that Siti is not actually about poverty, but rather primarily about gender. This then makes for a problematic comparison with the Turah.

The focus and specific points of comparison must then be made clear and in turn clarify the reasons for the films that the author chooses to discuss here.

In brief, the major problems that need to be addressed are:

- 1) clarifying the relationship between the various subjects that come up in the paper
- 2) A clearer and more substantial engagement (NOT SIMPLY CITING A WORK WITHOUT DISCUSSING IT) of relevant fields including both Film Studies and Southeast Asian Studies.
- 3) More attention paid to the proofreading of the English prose.

Please do let us know if you would like to take the time to revise for re-submission.

[Reviewers' Response to Score Sheet Questions]

Clarity of the problems questioned

Reviewer: 1

Clarity of the problems questioned: The key issues of the paper are clearly stated - Focusing on poverty in the films Turah and Siti, this paper presents innovative research into class issues in post-Suharto Indonesian cinema.

Reviewer: 2

Clarity of the problems questioned: After reading entirely from one to other paragraphs, it is difficult to find the exact problems attempted to be discussed. This paper seems to propose claims the significant discussion of poverty in the two films without any reason the uniqueness of both films among other films. Thus, in my opinion, this paper does not formulate clear problems questioned followed by its discussion.

Internal consistency

Reviewer: 1

Internal consistency: The weakness of the paper lies in the choice of films. The author mentions several times that 'Siti' is not actually about poverty, but about gender, with poverty as the background to the theme of gender. This makes the comparison feel one-sided, because the theme of Turah is poverty.

Reviewer: 2

Internal consistency: In my understanding, this paper seems inconsistent in explaining its topic. In the first introductory paragraph, for example, this paper discusses rapid transformation after new order era. Then, the writer cites other writer considering political and economical domination. In the next paragraph, the writer discusses something else namely local and central production of film in Indonesia. Again, the writer cites other irrelevant references. This also happens in the next paragraphs.

Without exploring poverty, suddenly the writer states that poverty is the focus of paper. From this statement, this paper discusses more on Krisna Sen argumentations. Then, no detail information on the poverty within both movies.

Readers could easily find inconsistency until the conclusion. Thus, in terms of internal consistency, I prefer to recommend the author to make major revision and reconceptualise the relevant idea from one to other paragraphs.

Appropriateness of literatures

Reviewer: 1

Appropriateness of literatures: There is a reasonable range of literature.

Reviewer: 2

Appropriateness of literatures: Most of the references cited in this paper are relevant. However, I can easily find that the citation is written without further discussion and rather adjusting the paper's arguments.

Originality of contribution

Reviewer: 1

Originality of contribution: The paper would make an original contribution, but in its current form is not yet suitable for publication. The paper is largely descriptive, with little real analysis. A major revision is required.

Reviewer: 2

Originality of contribution: In term of originality, the case discussed by this paper is a recent phenomenon in Indonesia. It can contribute to the field of film studies regarding the form of poverty or its category. from the cultural studies within Indonesian or Southeast Asian studies, other narratives such as works of literature often portrait a similar or relevant discussed topic.

[Reviewers' Comments]

Reviewer: 1

Comments to the Author

Review of manuscript: Two Dark Stories from Rural Indonesia: Comparing the Poverty in Turah (2016) and Siti (2014)

The weakness of the paper lies in the choice of films. The author mentions several times that 'Siti' is not actually about poverty, but about gender, with poverty as the background to the theme of gender. This makes the comparison feel one-sided, because the theme of Turah is poverty.

The paper would make an original contribution, but in its current form is not yet suitable for publication. The paper is largely descriptive, with little real analysis. A major revision is required, with a focus on the following:

1. If the author wishes to include 'Siti' in the comparative study, then there must be a rigorous analysis, drawing on available literature of how gender and poverty are linked in Indonesia. To what extent is poverty in Indonesia gendered?
2. Greater attention needs to be given to the social context and settings of both films.
3. The statement 'The theme of the compared films in this paper belongs to "the individual vs the group" needs further explanation.
4. The reference to Althusser's idea of 'interpellation' or 'hailing' is pertinent. I think this should be expanded so that it becomes one of the theoretical underpinnings of the paper. At the moment there is no real theoretical position.
5. The paper requires significant editing, as currently the standard of English expression – including the translation of the quotations from the films - is not what one would expect in an English language refereed journal.

Reviewer: 2

Comments to the Author

1. This paper needs to consider academic writing and the journal writing style in terms of formulating ideas.
2. Formulating problems questioned should be clear to show the focus and contribution of the paper within the field of studies.
3. Try to consider SEA studies readers and not to be exclusive on Indonesian readers.

Dear Dr. Taufiqurrohman,

I hope this mail finds you in good health.

Before sending your paper to our copy editor, we would like to ask you for a few things.

1. Concerning references, could you please check DOIs of books, book chapters, and journal articles and include them as far as you can?

2. Concerning references we ask authors to list them in Alphabetical order according to the authors' surnames, but first names in the case of Thai, or Malay or Indonesian who do not have surnames. Could you please check our guidelines and reformat your references, if necessary? (https://englishkyoto-seas.org/wp-content/uploads/Guidelines_20180710.pdf)

3. If you have omitted your names and all references to your identities in the main text of your article in the review process, please include them.

If you would like to include Acknowledgements, please include them, too.

4. Please include your ORCID ids if you and your co-author have one.

If you have any inquiries, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Thank you very much for your attention and we look forward to hearing from you soon.,

Dear Dr. Muhammad Taufiqurrohman and Dr.Aidatul Chusna,

We hope this mail finds you well.

Please find attached the first galley proof of your article for "Southeast Asian Studies (SEAS)" Vol. 11, No. 2, which we just received from the printing company.

And, could we ask you to go through it to see whether everything is in order for you?

Especially, concerning the URLs of DOIs in the references, it would be appreciated if you could check whether they could jump to the related sites properly.

We, editorial office, will also read over it to see if there are any typos and the URLs of DOIs in the references are correct.

And, could you please let us know your mailing address?

Either home or work address should be fine.

We will send you one printed copy of the journal(for each person)and 30 copies of the offprints(up to 30 copies for one article),after publication.

It would be appreciated if you could respond by July 1.

Best regards,

Dear Dr. Muhammad Taufiqurrohman,

We hope this email finds you well. Thank you very much for checking the first gallery proof.

We are very sorry to bother you again, but we have editorial questions on your article and put our comments in the attached file. So, could you please check them and give your answers to them? (our comments are on 2, 3, 6, 16, 22, and 23 pages)

It would be appreciated if you could give the file back after putting your comments/answers into each comment box we made. If any questions, please feel free to contact us.

Thank you very much for your attention to this matter. We look forward to your response.

Best regards,
