dedicate at least two or three paragraphs to link SME and creative economy, both conceptually and practically. The inclusion of batik enterprise should be further justified as batik sector is rarely mentioned in the discussion of creative economy.

Title: Need to be shortened, and considered using the term “small and medium-sized enterprises” while “small and medium enterprises” could be in place.

Abstract: A restructure of content is compulsory for a stronger presentation and to deliver key features of the research only. Linkage to creative economy was missing.

Keywords: Most of keywords need to be replaced, the author may need to look at the principle of keyword generation once again.

Content:

1. The author may add the significance of Banyamas Regency that was chosen as the target region for this study.
2. A clearer scope of research should be inserted if possible.
3. In page 6 to page 9, the author may add how the two enterprises related to the creative economy context or concept.
4. The conclusion and recommendation part was well structured and written, the rest of the content is expected to be adjusted without major alteration to have a smoother flow of content through the article.

Overall: A proofread with focus on structure, grammar, vocabulary, spelling, and language consistency is required before publication.

Even though the topic is highly relevant, author should aware that small and medium business sector is different to creative economy sector. The two could have association, but while SME might have creative ideas and practices, creative economy is not merely about business. Author must realise that creative economy is about independence and how young people could further develop their creativity and having economic potential of what they do is a bonus, not the goal.
